The South Carolina dispensary law is so used to being judicially thumped that it doesn't mind being knocked out occasionally.

"Divine Healer" Schrader was stoned in a Missouri town and then he became a heeler, or rather a wheeler, for he took to his bike and scooted.

A late law of New York makes train wrecking a capital offense, but it doesn't apply to the train wreckers of Wall street. They are privileged characters.

The Cheyenne Indians do not mean any harm by the racket they are raising out in Montana. The weather is rather cool out there and they want to make it warm for their white neighbors.

Some of the hunters in Louisiana are taking a mean advantage of the deer which have been driven by the floods to dry spots by going in and shooting them without giving them a chance to run.

An Arkansas State Senator was sent to jail for one minute for trying to kill an editor. The judge was disgusted with the bungling way he went about it and thought he deserved punishment.

An umbrella that will fold up is among the latest inventions. That kind of an umbrella may be all right, but what is really needed is the umbrella which will come back when it inadvertently strays off.

A Wisconsin paper reminds Senator Billy Mason, of Illinois, in commenting on his Cuban speech, that "there are more Americans starving in Chicago than in Cuba, and more murdered in a week than have been killed in Cuba in the whole two years of the war." This may be so, but if so it is a pretty rough arraignment of Chicago. But Chicago is under Democratic administration now and the conditions may improve.

A Havana paper shows its utter contempt for the United States jingoes by declaring in its most vigorous type that the Spanish people despise them and could "spit in their faces one hundred times." Carrying on a spitting war would be about the extent of their prowess, but maybe this editor never saw any of our fellows "chawing" tobacco, or noticed how easily they could convert a Spaniard into a cuspidor.

A few days ago the Salvation Army people in New York were convicted in court of disturbing the peace by noisy demonstrations at night, and now some Salvationists in Phoenixville, Pa., have been fined for persisting in blowing horns and beating drums. The people up there don't like so much racket in saving 'em.

Medical examination has shown that 7,233 out of the 23,049 children in the public schools of Minneapolis have defective eyes. In other cities similar examinations have shown a large percentage of the children so afflicted. Too much books, perhaps, and too much strain on the young eyes.

Some crank has been sending Speaker Reed threatening letters. He was smart enough to send them sealed, and thus escaped arrest. According to the law it seems that you can threaten a fellow as much as you please provided you don't do it on a cheap postal card, but buy a two cent stamp and seal the threat up.

Delaware is a small State, but its legislature cannot be accused of doing nothing. It granted one hundred divorces last session, and if divorces come as high as it is said they do some of the solons must be pretty well fixed.

The Washington Post contained an editorial a day or two ago on "the situation in the House." At last accounts Tom Reed was on top, and Jerry Simpson looked as if he would like to do some gouging.

The warden of the State penitentiary of California nipped an insurrection of the 700 prisoners in the bud by turning the hose upon them. The prisoners at once took in the situation and took water.

Kansas is congratulating herself on the prospects of enough bread next year. She is counting on a 40,000,000 bushel wheat crop.

Mr. and Mrs. Griffin's Recital.

Wilmington is to be treated to a musical entertainment of more than usual merit on next Monday night at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium, in the recital to be given by Mrs. Minnie Fish-Griffin, soprano, and Mr. Bennett Griffin, of Chicago. Mrs. Griffin has sung in twelve or fourteen concerts as soloist with the famous Theodore Thomas orchestra, and this in itself commends her as a singer of unusual ability. She has charmed her hearers everywhere. Mr. Griffin has only to be heard to prove his superiority as a violinist. He produces a clear tone with plenty of volume and entirely devoid of unpleasant screeching.

Mr. Griffin uses a Stradivarius violin of 1640, for which he has refused $3,500.

Reserved seats at Yates'; price 50 cents.

PRACTICAL INFORMATION

That the Seaboard Proposes to Furnish to People Along the Line of Its Road.

The people who live along the Seaboard Air Line will not suffer for want of practical information on industrial matters if the S. A. L. can possibly help it. The latest enterprise is explained in a letter from Mr. J. T. Patrick, Chief Industrial Agent. The letter, follows in part:

We want the people along our line of road to see and use every kind of household and farm convenience and labor-saving implement, and to learn how to save the little things, fruit, vegetables, milk, and all kinds of farm products, and to this end we are fitting up a train of cars and employing expert farmers, dairymen, canners, &c., and will make exhibits at the one hundred and fifty stations on our road from Norfolk, Va., to Atlanta, Ga. We will be glad to have you contribute to our exhibit. Whatever you want to exhibit we will carry over our line free of cost, and if it is necessary for you to send some one to explain your exhibit, we will furnish them with free transportation. We want to start about 10th to 15th of June, and we would like to have shipments made at once to address of Seaboard Air Line, Pinebluff, N. C., so that they can be provided for and arranged in our exhibit car.

Parties in this community wishing to introduce any special object or implement are invited by Mr. Thos. D Meares, General Agent, to communicate with him promptly on the subject.

Magistrate's Court.

Yesterday morning Tom Brown, white, the star actor in the "sad, but true" comedy enacted in the confectionery store of Mr. N. Paul, Friday morning, faced Justice McGowan, charged with disorderly conduct. Brown submitted, and Justice McGowan suspended judgment in the case upon payment of cost, and then remitted the cost.

At noon Brown stood facing another magistrate, Justice John J. Fowler. This time the defendant was charged with being too familiar with the servants of the law, or, in other words, resisting Deputy Sheriff Wm. Fonfield, colored. Justice Fowler, after hearing the evidence of those who were present at the performance, reserved his decision until 3 o'clock in the afternoon, at which time he rendered his decision in favor of the defendant, thereby declaring Tom Brown was not guilty of the crime charged against him.

Burglarious Attempt.

Early Friday morning an attempt was made to break into the store of Mr. Charles Richter, corner of Fourth and Hanover streets, and later an attempt was made to enter the store of Mr. Perry Woodcock, which is on the opposite corner from Mr. Richter's. The burglar at Mr. Richter's store was frightened off, while at work, by Mr. Frank Walker, conductor on the Wilmington Street Railway, who was returning home from work between 1 and 2 o'clock. Mr. Walker saw the man run off as he approached.

Yesterday the police arrested a colored man, Taney alias Joe Smith, on suspicion of being the would-be burglar, but he was afterwards released after Mr. Walker had seen and failed to identify him.

THE PRIZE RING.

Interest in the sporting world is now centered upon the coming fight between the two fistic gladiators, Peter Maher and Tom Sharkey. The battle will be pulled off next Thursday at the Palace Athletic Club, New York city, under the management of Billy Brady, who has been identified with James J. Corbett during all of his great fights. The predictions of the entire sporting fraternity is that the coming battle will be one of the hardest ever fought in the pugilistic arena.

That Peter Maher is a game and powerful fighter has been forcibly illustrated many times, and he is conceded to be the hardest hitter in the prize ring, barring none. It is true that he is lacking in science, but so is his opponent, Sharkey. Of the two, Maher, at any rate, is the quickest fighter. Maher, with the exception of having been whipped twice by Champion Bob Fitzsimmons, once in New Orleans, 1892, in twelve rounds, and once in San Francisco, last year, in less than one round, bears a good record. Sharkey is noted as being a hard fighter and a tough one, and generally commences to fight in its most defined sense at once. Although his record is a short one, yet he boasts of having made a show of four rounds with Corbett at San Francisco last year, and he was also granted a victory over Fitzsimmons at San Francisco last year on an alleged foul, which all statements show that Lankey Bob never delivered. If training counts for anything, Sharkey should be in good condition, as he is being assisted in his preparations for the contest by Joe Choynski, who recently ended the pugilistic aspirations of Denver Ed. Smith.

Maher is training at Westchester, N. Y., near the Morris Park race track, while Sharkey is laboring at Bochan's road house, New Dorp, S. I. A $15,000 purse is the inducement for the winner.

WILMINGTON, N. C.

SUNDAY MORNING, JUNE 6, 1897

PROFIT IN COTTON.

To the average cotton grower there is not much profit in cotton growing at present prices or at any prices that cotton is likely to command in the future, for the reason that it costs too much per acre to cultivate the crop for the amount of cotton it yields. The average yield per acre for the South is less than a third of a bale, which after deducting the cost of production leaves a very small margin for profit, if there be any profit at all. The following table compiled from the U. S. Department of Agriculture gives the production per acre for the past ten years, the value per pound and the value per acre:

1886-87.	183 56	10 25	$16.76
1887-88.	176 54	10 27	18 13
1888-89.	173.65	10 71	18.60
1889-90.	173.25	11.53	19 98
1890-91.	196.68	9 03	17.76
1891-92.	206 21	7.64	15 76
1892-93.	176 15	8 24	14 51
1893-94.	183 28	7 67	14.06
1894 95.	193 68	6.26	12.13
1895-96.	158.06	8.16	12 90
Average.	180.91	8.84	15.98

On the average for ten years this gives a little over a third of a bale to the acre, worth an average of $15.98 per acre. While this is not a very big showing, it is a much better one than is likely to be shown for the next ten years if the present methods of culture be pursued, for in five of these years cotton went above nine cents a pound, the tendency being downward ever since, the downward tendency keeping pace with the increase of production. Cotton may not go to a much lower figure than it is now, unless the acreage should continue to increase, and it is not likely to go to a much higher figure unless the acreage be very much reduced, and there is little prospect of that, for farmers in the cotton belt have cotton on the brain and will stick to it, even if the price should go absolutely below the cost of production, for there are a great many who have so little system that they do not know what it costs them to make cotton, or anything else. The lower it goes the more many will plant, hoping to make up by increased product for the lower price.

There are reasons, and very good ones, why the cotton planters cling so tenaciously to it, for it is a crop that is always in demand, always marketable, and always commands cash, and while it fluctuates in price is not liable to the same fluctuations as other staple crops, for owing to the limited area of cultivation there is less likelihood of a very large surplus, although large enough to keep prices down. Unlike tobacco, wheat, oats, corn, etc., it will keep indefinitely without damage, and is always in marketable condition, and is always a collateral for money approximating its value. After baling it is easily cared for and easily marketed. For these and other reasons it is a favorite crop, and will continue to be a favorite with Southern farmers whether they raise much or little of it. It is one of the few crops, too, that money will be advanced on before it is planted, and that is another reason why so much is planted even by those who cannot afford to plant it, because they have to pay too much for the money, fertilizers and supplies advanced to make the crop.

But if cotton is not a profitable crop, it can be made profitable, by better methods and more systematic and thorough culture, by making one acre produce what it now requires several acres to produce. When this is done and planters regulate their product according to the demand for consumption, then cotton will become one of the most profitable of crops, a money crop in fact as well as in name, and an ideal crop to raise. The "intensive" system must take the place of the expansive, and expensive system, the old rut system, pursued blindly and with little intelligence as a rule for so many years. It will come, come as a matter of necessity. It is only a question of time. But it will come as a matter of necessity as the population of the cotton States increases and as the size of the farms diminish. Intensive farming is the only kind of farming that will pay on the small farm, whether cotton or anything else be grown, and it is the only kind of farming that will pay well on the large farm.

In an article written for The Southern States magazine by Mr. D. A. Tompkins, of Charlotte, he gives the following table to show the possible results under the intensive system as compared with the old system of scratching over a good many acres instead of putting more effort on one acre. He figures on one acre thus:

	Ordinary.	Intensive.
Fertilizer	$ 1 00	$ 8.00
Labor	5 00	8 00
Stock and utensils	1.00	5.00
Interest on investment, etc.	1.00	4.00
Picking	2.00	12.00
Total	$10 00	$37.00
Product at 6½c (170 lbs)	11.05	(1,000 lbs) 65.00
Profit	$ 1.05	$28.00

The cost of production on the intensive plan is a little over three times as much per acre, the product nearly six times as much, and the net profit nearly twenty-seven times as much. A crop of fifty acres, even at the low price of 6½ cents a pound, would give a very respectable net income. What is possible on one acre is possible on a thousand or more.

These are not extravagant figures of Mr. Tompkins, for they have been exceeded in this and other States—on land which was only average cotton land, if not below the average. As much as three bales to the acre have been produced in Mecklenburg and in Edgecombe counties, and by a young farmer who has become independent growing cotton near Atlanta, Ga., on land that was considered before he took hold of it very poor.

MINOR MENTION.

Senator Gray made two pertinent objections, Tuesday, to an increase of the duty on timber when he said that "the millionaire owners of timber lands are not mendicants," and that duties were simply "putting a premium on the destruction of our forests." Both of these are good objections, especially the latter. If the doctrine of protection be conceded, the timber men of this country do not need it for they have but little competition, those in the interior of the country none, for timber will not bear transportation far and therefore imported timber cannot become a dangerous competitor of the timber men of the interior. But aside from that the great timber ranges of the country are owned by wealthy men and companies who purchased the lands at figures insignificant compared with the quantity and value of the timber upon them, and frequently sell the land after it has been stripped of the merchantable timber for more than they paid for it. The cotton grower has to plant cotton; the wheat grower has to plant and cultivate his wheat or corn, but the timber man plants nothing, he simply harvests the crop that he finds grown, which cost him neither time, labor nor money. His only expense is in cutting down and shaping the trees for market. Some of the wealthiest men in this country have made their fortunes in lumber, among them Secretary of War Alger, who has become a multi-millionaire since he went into the business about twenty-five years ago. But aside from this the tax on imported timber is, as Senator Gray asserted, simply a premium on forest destruction, the penalties of which we have already been paying in destructive floods, droughts, etc. Such a tax has not even the excuse that it brings revenue to the Government, for the revenue it brings is a trifle compared with the injury it does.

Some of the Northern gold standard papers are not disposed to take a very cheerful view of the situation from a "sound money" standpoint. They don't like the tinkering with the tariff, although when they pooled issues with Hanna, and supported McKinley they knew what Hanna was after and what McKinley and the Republican party were committed to. And they don't like McKinley's coquetting with the free silver men by appointing that silver commission to visit Europe, which they say will strengthen the free silver movement and give it encouragement. In recently discussing the situation and the outlook the Philadelphia Record says:

"The evidence accumulates all around us in such force as to leave little room for doubt, that in 1900 the country will be involved in another conflict against the enemies of the existent monetary standard, and that, too, under conditions by no means as favorable as were those of the late campaign."

The Record is evidently contemplating trouble ahead, and it is doubtless right in its horoscope, for there is one thing certain and that is that the silver sentiment has lost none of its force, and is as strong if not stronger to-day than it was when those 6,500,000 votes were cast for Wm. J. Bryan. Kentucky has led off by reaffirming the money plank of the Chicago platform, and Kentucky will be followed by every State that stood on that platform in the past campaign. And what is more, there are thousands of voters who were held in the Republican party or kept away from Bryan by the hope that there would be some substantial currency reform, and steps taken to settle the silver question, who will when that hope disappears cast their ballots with that party which courageously proposes a way to settle it and will stand by it.

* * *

The Republican tariff boomers may succeed in persuading some simple-minded people that it is the foreigner who pays the tariff tax, but they are not succeeding in convincing the importers of that, or the manufacturers who use imported raw materials. If the foreigner pays the tax why are American importers hastening to fill their warehouses with imported goods before the new tariff with its increased duties takes effect? Why was the retroactive clause added to the House tariff bill? Why are the woollen manufacturers protesting against putting wool back on the dutiable list? Why are the tanners and shoe manufacturers protesting against putting a duty on hides? If the foreigner pays the tax why should they worry over it and kick so vigorously?

People who buy Hood's Sarsaparilla year after year because it does them good. It will do you good to take it now.

SPIRITS TURPENTINE.

— Weldon News: Mr. W. H. Sledge, one of the oldest and best known farmers of the Aurelian Springs section, died at his home last Tuesday; aged 82 years. The deceased had been in feeble health for some time and his death was not unexpected.

— Burlington News: Last Sunday evening. Will Isley, who was in the stockade of this county workhouse scaled the stockade fence and made for the woods and freedom. Hartsoe and his blood hounds were sent for to trail him. The hounds took the trail at the fence where Isley jumped over and followed it about three fourths of a mile to a place on Mr. L. B. Holt's plantation where they ran him up a tree.

— Oxford Ledger: Mr. John Bullock, of Bullock, the great lumber cutter of this section, is supplying 11 Railroads in 5 States with timber and does a very large business. —— It is reported in Oxford that Oak Hill township has the champion milch cow of this section. She is an ordinary old field cow and gives from 7 to 8 gallons of milk a day, and that her udder hangs within a few inches of the ground, making it quite difficult for her to walk any distance.

— Red Springs Citizen: D. Webb Flowers, 27 years of age, living about three miles southwest of Lumberton, was found dead in bed last Friday morning. Heart disease was the supposed cause. —— The Williams-Fitzhugh Lumber Company sustained quite a loss by the burning of their mill, situated near Buie, and in charge of Willie Fitzhugh. The loss is estimated at $500. The fire was discovered about 2 o'clock Friday night, and no cause whatever can be given for the origin —— We are sorry to announce the death of Mrs. James Council, in the 70th year of her age. She was a direct descendant of "Chrisdaiadh Ban" (pronounced Charis-Chee-na), whose full name was Christian McMillan, and who emigrated to this country in 1772. Her descendants settled and dominated to a large extent the whole of upper Robeson.

— Charlotte Observer: Mrs. M. C. Arrowood, wife of Rev. M. C. Arrowood, died suddenly at her home at Marshville Thursday. The remains were brought up on the Carolina Central yesterday morning, and were taken to Gastonia, thence to Long Creek, her old home, where the funeral services were conducted Friday. ——Mr. Clarence Keuster, who came in on the Air Line last Friday evening, brought news of the killing by lightning of two colored women—Daisy Morris and mother—at Crowder's Mills, near Bessemer, yesterday evening. The women had put their tubs under an old tree to wash their clothes. When the storm came up the Morris woman left her tub and picked up her baby, which was on the ground near by. Her mother continued on washing. Lightning struck the tree and the women. Daisy was killed instantly, but, strange to say, the child was not hurt. Her mother lived for several hours, but was dying when the train left.

CURRENT COMMENT.

—— The esteemed Louisville Courier-Journal is in a bad way. Despite its advice to the contrary the Kentucky Democrats have turned out in large numbers to their primaries and selected silver delegates to their State Convention—Washington Post, Ind.

—— William Waldorf Astor approves himself the most disgusting toady and snob ever born on American soil. He pays an enormous rental for a small and mean house simply to get the right to say he tenanted an abode once occupied by royalty, the house having been used by the Duke and Duchess of Fife.—Chattanooga Times, Dem.

—— Hurrah! The friends of tariff reform have secured a victory at last. After a desperate struggle the duty on anvils in the Senate bill was reduced from 2 cents to 1¾ cents per pound. The starving millions will save ¼ cent per pound on their anvils because of this, which, of course, they will be ready anvilling to do.—Indianapolis Sentinel, Dem.

—— Government control of rings and trusts is a new scheme which it is proposed to try in Austria. Only a paternal Government could assume such a function, but the plan is decidedly better than to let the rings and trusts control the Government, as is said to be the case occasionally in some other countries.—Philadelphia Ledger.

—— However much Mr. Chapman may have been sustained by the consciousness that any other broker who expected to enjoy the confidence of investors would have followed the course he pursued, there must in the case of so experienced a business man be a great degree of humiliation attaching to his present attitude of scape-goat and cat's paw.—Washington Star, Ind.

SOMETIME.

MAY RILEY SMITH.

Sometime when all life's lessons have been learned,
And the sun and stars forevermore have set
The things which our weak judgments here have spurned,
The things o'er which we grieved with lashes wet,
Will flash before us out of life's dark night,
As stars shine most in deeper tints of blue;
And we shall see how God's plans are right,
And how what seemed reproof was love most true.

And we shall see how, while we frown and sigh,
God's plans go on as best for you and me;
How, when we called, He heeded not our cry,
Because His wisdom to the end could see.
And e'en as prudent parents disallow
Too much of sweet to craving babyhood,
So God, perhaps, is keeping from us now
Life's sweetest things, because it seemeth good.

And if, sometimes, commingled with life's wine
We find the wormwood, and rebel and shrink,
Be sure a wiser hand than yours or mine
Pours out the potion for our lips to drink;
And if some friend we love is lying low,
Where human kisses cannot reach his face,
Oh, do not blame the loving father so,
But wear your sorrow with obedient grace!

And you shall shortly know that lengthened breath,
Is not the sweetest gift God sends His friend,
And that, sometimes the sable pall of death
Conceals the fairest boon His love can send.
If we could push ajar the gates of life,
And stand within and all God's workings see,
We could interpret all this doubt and strife
And for each mystery could find a key.

But not to-day. Then be content poor heart;
God's plans like lilies pure and white unfold;
We must not tear the close-shut leaves apart,
Time will reveal the calyxes of gold.
And, if, through patient toil, we reach the land
Where tired feet, with sandals loose, may rest,
When we shall clearly know and understand,
I think that we shall say, "God knew the best."

SUNDAY SELECTIONS.

— No man who truly follows Christ ever has to stand alone.

— When you pray don't forget those who treat you despitefully.

— Every man helps the devil who who talks one way and lives another.

— "There is no velvet so soft as a mother's lap, no star so lovely as her smile, no music so melodious as her voice, no rose so fragrant as the memory of her love."

— The wind makes the waves. Christ rebuked the wind and stilled the waves. The true peace comes when He rebukes the evil which disturbs the conscience, and give us rest in pardoning love.

— Do not dare to think that a child of God can worthily work out his career, or worthily serve God's other children, unless he does both in the love and fear of God their Father.—Phillips Brooks.

— "I am the vine; ye are the branches." The branches are the very same wood as the vine, and the very same sap pervades them both. And they that are joined to the Lord are of one spirit. The same mind is in them which was also in Christ Jesus.

A Loyal Servant.

In spite of the inherent capacity for treachery and deceit we are accustomed to associate with the natives of India, one comes across wonderful and touching evidences of loyalty and devotion. Witness the devotion and faithfulness of our Goorha regiments during the terrible mutiny, and the thrilling stories of wonderful escapes entirely due to the loyalty of personal servants.

The following true incidents happened lately in Madras: An Indian colonel had a "boy" for 18 years. Having to go home on furlough, he pensioned him and let him return to his family to do nothing for the rest of his life. Returning to Madras, he was informed by a brother officer that his "boy" was as fit as ever and only too anxious to return to duty. Almost before it seemed that a letter could have had time to reach him the "boy" was back in his accustomed place.

For two years he waited on his master as of yore, though his hair was silvered and his back bent. One day the colonel returned from parade and had his wants supplied as usual. His servants on leaving him salaamed low, remarking: "Should the sahib want anything more and call, his faithful slave will hear. He berry tired—sleep." When the sahib called, there was no answer. They found him curled on his mat. He had lain down—"tired." He would never be "tired" again. Uncomplainingly he had followed his sahib. Long marches, want of food, sickness and privation had never aroused a complaint. When death came, he lay down without a murmur.—London Gentlewoman.

Legislating Back His Character.

Sam Davis, in discussing the subject of Indians, told of the rehabilitation of Johnston Sides. Johnston Sides was a chief of the Nevada Indians who made quite a fame for himself as a temperance lecturer among his own people. But one day, "being sick," he took a drink of whisky in the Magnolia saloon and was observed by some wicked white men, who straightway started the report in full circulation, and Mr. Sides' reputation bade fair to be gone. But he was an Indian of influence, and, appealing to his white friends, he represented that something must be done else he would become an outcast from his tribe. He acknowledged drinking the liquor, but told the sick man story. Sides had always been a fair sort of an Indian, so, as he pleaded and begged, two or three good fellows in the legislature agreed to fix things so that he could go back to his people in pride of conquest. Accordingly this concurrent resolution was drawn up:

"Resolved, by the legislature of the state of Nevada, the governor concurring, That the drink of whisky taken by Johnston Sides in the Magnolia saloon July 11, 1887, be and is hereby annulled."

Several speeches were made, and old Sides, surrounded by a big gathering of his tribe, sat in the lobby and heard all with profound interest. When the favorable vote was announced, the Indians set up a weird warcry, which was understood to be applause, and, headed by Johnston, the exculpated, they walked out into a sunshine of great happiness.—Chicago Record.

A Queer Fact About Vision.

In the eye itself certain things may go on which give us wrong sensations, which, although not truly illusions, are very much like them. Thus, when we suddenly strike our heads or faces against something in the dark we see "stars," or bright sparks, which we know are not real lights, though they are quite as bright and sparkling as if they were. When we close one eye and look straight ahead at some word or letter in the middle of this page, for example, we seem to see not only the thing we are looking at, but everything else immediately about it and for a long way on each side. But the truth is there is a large round spot somewhere near the point at which we are looking in which we see nothing. Curiously enough, the existence of this blind spot was not discovered by accident, and nobody ever suspected it until Mariotte reasoned from the construction of the eyeball that it must exist and proceeded to find it.—Harrison Wilson, M. D., in St. Nicholas.

A Wonderful Mathematician.

Zerah Colburn, born in 1804, was the most remarkable natural mathematician every known. He was able to raise 8 to the sixteenth power, this comprising 15 figures, and was right in every particular. Once he was requested to name the factors which produced the number 247,483 and immediately gave the correct answer. He was asked the square root of 106,929, and before the figures could be written down he gave the answer.

That Tired Feel-

Extreme tired feeling afflicts nearly everybody at this season. The hustlers cease to push, the tireless grow weary, the energetic become enervated. You know just what we mean. Some men and women endeavor temporarily to overcome that

Feeling by great force of will. But this is unsafe, as it pulls powerfully upon the nervous system, which will not long stand such strain. Too many people "work on their nerves," and the result is seen in unfortunate wrecks marked "nervous prostration," in every direction. That tired ing is a positive proof of thin, weak, impure blood; for, if the blood is rich, red, vitalized and vigorous, it imparts life and energy to every nerve, organ and tissue of the body. The necessity of taking Hood's Sarsaparilla for that tired feeling is, therefore, apparent to every one, and the good it will do you is equally beyond question. Remember that

Hot Drinks For Thirst.

It is a mistake to suppose that cold drinks are necessary to relieve thirst. Very cold drinks, as a rule, increase the feverish condition of the mouth and stomach and so create thirst. Experience shows it to be a fact that hot drinks relieve the thirst and "cool off" the body when it is in an abnormally heated condition better than ice cold drinks. It is far better and safer to avoid the use of drinks below 60 degrees. In fact, a higher temperature is to be preferred, and those who are much troubled with thirst will do well to try the advantages to be derived from hot drinks, instead of cold fluids, to which they have been accustomed. Hot drinks also have the advantage of aiding digestion, instead of causing debility of the stomach and bowels.—New York Ledger.

A Defense of Tea.

Florence Nightingale has come to the defense of tea in print. She thinks there is altogether too much said against tea drinking, and says she would be very glad if "any of the tea abusers would point out what to give to an English patient after a sleepless night instead of tea. It is the almost universal testimony of English men and women," she continues, "who have undergone great fatigue, such as riding long journeys without stopping or sitting up for several nights in succession, that they could do it best on an occasional cup of tea and nothing else."—New York Post.

WHO KNOWS?

As when the yellow autumn time is here,
Each tree and shrub, not doubtful of the spring,
Puts forth new buds whose hope the waning year
Has not the power into full leaf to bring—
So we who sadly tread life's downward slope,
Chill blooded, feeble limbed and bent and gray,
Put forth, while passing, each his bud of hope
That we may come again to youth and May.
And hark! The robin pipes again. The stream
Shakes off the frosty fetters it has worn.
The buds, awaking from their frighting dream,
Unfold rejoicing in a spring newborn
And prophesy the lily and the rose.
So spring may come again to us. Who knows?
—J. L. Heaton in "The Quilting Bee."

THE PAPER'S VALEDICTORY.

A "Farewell" Issue That Read Like an Oracle to Survivors.

Several years ago I was the Omaha Republican's correspondent in Lincoln, Neb., the state capital, when the paper changed hands. The new proprietor had a policy in two words, "Reduce salaries!" In a few months he was himself reduced to the point where he couldn't pay any salary. He asked me to come to Omaha and take the editorship at the salary I was receiving as reporter. He would cut my salary in two if I remained in Lincoln. I accepted reluctantly. It was only a question of a few weeks when the paper would have to suspend, and there was little honor or profit in guiding the wreck.

For three weeks we managed to get along somehow, and then the proprietor went into retirement. The Republican had the Associated Press franchise and had presses and material worth $20,000. It had about 8,000 paid subscribers. I had tried to get somebody to buy it, and, in the hope that somebody would, we continued to get the paper out. At last the printers announced that they would not work any longer. I prevailed upon them to work that night, and they agreed to help get out a farewell issue. It was a unique specimen. For weeks Mr. Rosewater, the proprietor of The Bee, and Mr. Hitchcock, the proprietor of The World-Herald, had been waiting for The Republican's demise with eager expectation. They knew we had been endeavoring to sell the paper to outside parties, and I determined to give them a scare.

In an editorial recounting the vicissitudes through which The Republican had passed I said that at last the paper's troubles had come to an end, and they had. For some weeks, the editorial went on to say, the future of The Republican had been problematic, but now the suspense was over. We knew exactly what was in store for the paper, and we did. For our contemporaries there might be rivalries and annoyances, but for The Republican all that was past, and it was.

I learned afterward that there was consternation in The Bee and World-Herald offices the next day and that it was not until the second night, when everybody knew the old Republican had gone under, that our contemporaries were reassured.—New York Mail and Express.

Simple Remedies.

For a cold in the face apply to the gum a piece of cotton wet with a mixture of laudanum and camphor, using two parts laudanum to one part camphor.

For threatened inflammation of the stomach take half a loaf of stale bread, wet with hot water, and sprinkle thickly with ground ginger. Apply to the stomach while waiting for the doctor's visit.

For a cold on the chest there is no better specific for most persons than well boiled or roasted onions, both for a cough and for the clogging of the bronchial tubes, which is usually the cause of the cough. If eaten freely at the outset of a cold, they will break up even a serious attack.

How to Breathe.—All children should be taught to breathe through the nose and to keep the mouth tightly closed. Many disease germs enter through the open mouth, while, if the mouth is kept closed, the air becomes purified while passing through the long, moist passages and tempered for the lungs.—Philadelphia Record.

Took Out the Starch.

William E. Curtis, the newspaper correspondent, tells the following story of a Washington colored woman: "The wife of a naval officer in this city, whose husband has just returned from a long cruise, is fixing up her home here and sent her lace curtains to a colored woman to be 'done up.' The 'washlady' returned them on the day agreed upon, but apologized because they were so 'limpsey' and offered to do them over again if she were allowed a few days' time. 'I had 'em jus' as stiff as you like, honey,' she remarked to the naval officer's wife, 'but my husband's niece by his fust wife died jus' at the time I got 'em ironed, and nuthin'll take the starch out of things so much as a corpse in a house.'" Another trial was given her.

Nerves and Teeth.

Bad nerves and bad teeth will be found to go together in an extraordinary number of cases. The hustle and bustle of our modern life, which is so trying to the nerves, has an equally detrimental effect upon the teeth.

IN THE CRETAN WAR.

In a secluded spot, two or three miles from the foot of Mount Usilorites, the name given to Mount Ida by the natives, there was situated a pretty little villa, surrounded by all the luxuriance and variant beauty of tropical verdure, where dwelt a retired merchant of Retimo with his family. Casser Issos was a gentleman of Grecian descent, but his home had always been in Crete. In earlier years he had resided at Retimo, but as his health failed with the advancement of age he found it pleasanter, even at 50, to live the quiet life afforded him in his villa at Idsea, while younger men performed the more active part of his business. His wife, a native Cretan, was a lady of refinement and of a gentle, loving disposition. They had two children—Alsace, a youth of 20, and a dutiful, worthy son as well, and a daughter, Hermione, whose physical beauty and corresponding loveliness of character were quite extraordinary in one of the tender age of 18.

When the Cretan inhabitants at last decided that they could no longer bear the cruel yoke of Turkey, Casser Issos took no small share of interest in the welfare of his country, and at once placed his wealth at its disposal, while he himself became a colonel in the Cretan army. Alsace also soon joined their ranks.

One beautiful Sunday morning after the landing of the Grecian army Hermione and her mother were attending the services at the little chapel near Idsea. Only a few women and children were present—all the men were absent "at their country's call." The white robed priest was chanting in a low, musical voice, and his congregation were all kneeling in positions of devotion. Soft breezes floated in through the open windows, bringing sweet odors from the tropical plants without. The hour was strangely solemn.

Suddenly there came the sound of horses' hoofs, and almost instantly a Cretan soldier sprang into the room exclaiming: "Flee! Flee for your lives! The Turks are upon us!" He had hardly spoken these words before a dozen or more evil looking Turks dashed up to the door, shouting loudly and calling upon Allah to aid them in their wicked work. The terrified supplicants had sprung to their feet and fled at the first word of alarm, some to the inner recesses of the chapel, others out of the open door toward the woods. Several of them were caught before they were 100 yards from the chapel, and three or four were brutally massacred for struggling to escape from the hands of their cruel captors.

But while all the others sought safety in flight two female figures remained motionless before the altar, trusting in the saints and in the sacredness of the place for protection. They were Hermione and her mother. The priest threw aside his robes, which he had worn over a complete Cretan uniform, and seizing his sword rushed to the rescue. The soldier who had given the alarm was lying wounded near the door. A Turk, spurning him with his foot, sprang over his body and down the aisle to where Hermione still knelt beside her mother. The maiden uttered a faint cry and clung close to her side.

They were upon their feet now and stood facing the ruffian. The mother drew one arm around her daughter as if for protection and with the other extended high above her head exclaimed in tones such as only a mother can use on such an occasion as this, "Ruffian, dare you defile the very altar of the God of heaven and earth!"

But the man did not understand her language, though he uttered some fierce exclamation in his own, as he roughly seized the maiden and tore her from her mother's side, who, frantic with horror, sank upon her knees, beseeching him to give back her child.

Meanwhile a party of six Cretans and Grecians with Colonel Issos arrived upon the scene. A skirmish took place outside the door, in which three Turks were killed and two others were wounded. On the other side nearly all received slight wounds, but those of the Cretan who had given the alarm proved fatal.

One of the Grecians, a youthful officer of noble birth, entered the chapel by a side entrance just in time to see Hermione snatched from her mother. He instantly sprang toward the ruffian, shouting to him to release the maiden. He could not shoot for fear of hitting her, and the Turk, casting one fierce glance behind, caught her up in his arms and fled with his prize toward the door. The Grecian was in close pursuit, and at the door he was so close that he sprang upon the Turk and forced him to release the girl, who fell prostrate upon the marble floor.

Her preserver immediately turned to raise her, unheeding, though the Turk dealt him a sharp blow with his sword, slashing his shoulder, before he fled to join his fleeing companions. He knelt by Hermione's side and sought to restore her to consciousness. He was deeply touched by the surpassing loveliness of those exquisite features, now so white and still, and as he bore his precious burden to a cushioned seat, laid her gently down and then stood gazing in rapt wonder, he was quite unconscious that the mother was standing at his side.

In a few moments the soft eyelids unclosed and the eyes turned until they rested upon his face, at first with an expression of fear and then with a sweet smile, all the color suddenly returning to her pale cheeks as she held out her hand to him, saying: "Ah, I know you are my preserver, brave one! How can I ever thank you? And there is a wound upon your shoulder, too, bleeding, all for me!"

The mother knelt beside her daughter, weeping for very joy, and Colonel Issos, who had just been told what had happened, stood by, pouring out his heartfelt gratitude to the young man who had rendered him so great a service. At last he asked the Grecian's name, for until an hour previous they had never met.

"I am Lieutenant Philip Zelotes," replied the young officer.

Philip Zelotes dined that day at Idsea. Three months later a wedding took place at the little chapel, when Hermione became Philip's wife, and the priest who presided at the ceremony was the same who had fought for Crete on that memorable Sunday morning.—Boston Post.

Justice and Correspondent.

Justice White of the supreme court is known among newspaper men as one of the kindliest men in the world. Not long ago a correspondent found it necessary to call upon the justice at midnight for a copy of an opinion delivered by him in the court that day. Justice White was in bed asleep, and it was with great difficulty his servant was induced to awaken him. "If I did not know him to be the best man in the world, I would not dare to do it," she explained. The correspondent waited anxiously in the hall for the verdict. Would the justice come down stairs? And if he came, would it be for the purpose of looking up the desired document or of throwing the disturber of the peace out?

After a time the big justice came down the stairs in his pyjamas, rubbing his sleepy eyes. He was not enthusiastic about his midnight call, but he was very polite. As soon as the visitor had explained his errand the justice led the way to his library. There he got down on his knees and rummaged about through some dusty old papers in the bottom of a bookcase for the desired document. In a quarter of an hour he found it, and he was very glad he had been able to do so, though not half so well pleased as the newspaper man, to whom this bit of paper meant a "scoop" the next morning for the journal he represented.

"Excuse me a moment," said Justice White. In five minutes he returned, bearing with him a glass of toddy and a couple of Havanas. "Drink hearty, my boy," he said, "and light a cigar. Nasty night out. Good night."

"Now, that is what I call a real gentleman," said the correspondent to himself as he rushed away.—Washington Cor. Detroit Journal.

Tantalizing.

"What is the meaning of the word 'tantalizing?'" asked the teacher.

"Please, ma'am," said Johnny, "it means a procession passing the schoolhouse and the pupils not allowed to look out."—Pearson's Weekly.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

Timid as a Rabbit.

It isn't always safe to count on the timidity of a creature that is proverbially timid. Jack, a big, white, lop eared rabbit, with pink eyes, was one of these exceptions.

Jack was one of the biggest members of his family, and when he didn't want to be picked up by his long ears he would scold and kick and jerk until it took a firm hold to keep him from getting away. At other times he was as gentle as a kitten.

Above everything Jack hated dogs, and he had a way of charging down upon the biggest of them which often sent them away howling.

When a strange cur came nosing about the place, Jack would crouch down in a sulk, with his pink eyes snapping. He would begin to grunt out disapproval, stamping his hind feet hard on the ground.

"Hu-u-u-uh! Hu-u-u-uh!" he would say spitefully, thumping with his feet. Then, when his anger was worked up, he would lay back his long ears and run in a white streak straight at the prowler. Just before he reached the dog he would spring off the ground and land all four feet into the dog's side.

No dog ever stood that charge. Doubtless they thought that a rabbit wouldn't do such a courageous thing, and when the rabbit did do it they must have thought it some strange animal which they didn't know how to fight.

Jack couldn't have hurt them, of course, but he wasn't afraid to try, and it was just that which won him all his battles. Some dogs in the neighborhood grew so afraid of him that they could not be coaxed to come near him.

But Jack got into bad habits and had to be killed. He had all the apples, potatoes, turnips and carrots that he could possibly want to eat. But he wasn't satisfied. So he began to gnaw the bark from trees and shrubs in the front lawn. He was whipped for it time and again. But after he had ruined a valuable pear tree in the garden he was shot for his disobedience.—Chicago Record.

And the crown was tall
And the brim was flat.

And she walked in the fields

And this funny little girl

A Cleanser.

Benzine as a cleanser is sometimes a remedy worse than the disease, as it often happens that no care can prevent it from making a marked circle around what was once a grease spot. The cleansing fluid given below has stood the test of time and experience. It has never been known to fail in taking off grease spots or to leave a trace on the most delicate fabric of muslin, lace, silk or wool: A quart deodorized benzine, 1 ounce alcohol, one-eighth ounce bay rum, one-eighth ounce ammonia, one-eighth ounce chloroform, one-eighth ounce ether, one-eighth ounce oil of wintergreen, one-half dram borax.

These mixed make rather a large bottleful of the fluid for daily use. But half the quantity or even a quarter of it might be prepared, as it loses some of its force by standing.—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Chinese Schoolboy.

The Chinese school children have instilled into them at an early age habits of hard, steady study. At the age of 5 a boy begins his schooling. At daylight he is given a task, and after it is completed is allowed an hour for breakfast. Again, later, he has an hour for luncheon. But he is at his study nearly 12 hours a day seven days in the week. All the time that he is not saying lessons he is learning aloud at the top of his voice. He is taught rudimentary astronomy, physics and natural history. But greater stress is laid upon writing and his literary studies than upon any other branch.—Harper's Round Table.

SUNDAY MORNING, JUNE 6, 1897

THE OHIO LYNCHING.

Intense Feeling at Urbana Against Sheriff McLain and Captain Leonard—Many Members of the Militia Company Have Left the City.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

URBANA, OHIO, June 5.—Instead of a negro dangling from a tree in the most prominent street corner, the excited populace thronging the streets, the military and sheriff hiding in the county jail, the spectacle of a peaceable community, a fleeing sheriff, a missing captain and a military company making themselves scarce, is presented. Nothing is known of the whereabouts of Sheriff McLain and Captain Leonard. It is the general understanding that the sheriff drove to Springfield and nobody outside the Captain's circle of immediate friends knows where he went. It was reported last evening that a mob of 150 was organizing to go to Springfield after the sheriff, and such word went to Springfield, having the effect, it is said, of driving the sheriff off to Dayton. He is universally condemned by the people and held responsible for the shooting of citizens by the militia. The citizens insist that he was altogether too officious in the matter and should have refrained from ordering out the troops. As for the captain, he is condemned for ordering the soldiers to fire, and the boys of the company for firing into a crowd of their fellow citizens. After their escape from the jail the members of the company have not dared to show up in the streets and many of them have left the city. A liveryman took a timid squad of them to Springfield.

Their troubles are not over with yet. Some of the wounded claim to know who shot them and several thrashings are laid up. It is reported that the father of Harry Bell, who was killed, threatens to kill Capt. Leonard on sight. The son was an unmarried man, aged 20 years, and a broom-maker by occupation. Baker, the other man killed, was 37 years old and married. He was a farmer, being employed on a farm near here. He leaves a wife and five small children.

The body of "Click" Mitchell, the rapist, has been secreted. Before being removed from the court house yard relic-hunters had nearly cut the coat off the dead man. Every button was gone and even his shoes and stockings were carried away.

Mayor C. H. Ganson says the tragedy of Thursday night and the lynching were wholly uncalled-for. He urged the sheriff to convey the prisoner away from town right away, but he failed to do so.

The Springfield company was ordered to report to the sheriff. They marched to the jail, but did not consult the sheriff, as he never made his appearance, and there is a question whether the mayor was authorized to speak for him in telling them to retire.

Captain Leonard and the local company will no doubt have to explain why they ceased to resist after firing into the mob, and somebody will have to explain how the keys happened to be dropped down onto the hall floor from up-stairs after the mob had broken in the outside door. The sheriff and militia were up there at the time.

The sheriff plainly stated before leaving the city that he and the troops retired to the up-stairs portion of the jail and quit offering any resistance simply because he was unwilling to shoot down any more citizens.

There will no doubt be a military investigation as to whether the captain acted under the mayor's orders in this matter. It is said the local company, being composed of Urbana boys, who cried over the shooting of their fellow citizens the previous night, absolutely refused to shoot again.

The sheriff denies the responsibility for the shooting, and so does the captain. On the other hand, the citizens assert that the sheriff himself fired the first shot. He asserts that at least five shots were fired into the jail from the outside before a shot was fired out from the inside.

COLUMBUS, O., June 5.—Governor Bushnell, in an interview to-night, stated that he favored the enactment of law making the penalty for extreme cases of criminal assault, death. He thought that punishment commensurate with the degree of crimes was the surest prevention of lynchings such as that at Urbana. He consulted one of the Judges of the Supreme Court on the matter and the latter coincided with his views.

BICYCLE PARADE.

Fifteen Thousand Riders Participated and It Was Witnessed By 100,000 People.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, June 5.—About fifteen thousand riders participated this afternoon in the Evening Telegram's annual bicycle parade, which was witnessed by fully 100,000 persons. Shortly before 4 o'clock the parade started from Seventy-third street and went up the Boulevard to 108th street, thence to Riverside drive, around Grant's tomb, and returned and disbanded at Seventy-second street. It took two hours for the parade to pass a given point. The admirable arrangement for the parade was carried out without a hitch.

The military portion of the parade came in for much favorable comment, and the Brooklyn and New Jersey clubs made a fine showing. The floral division was greatly admired, and a large number of wheelmen in grotesque costumes created much excitement.

A PITCHED BATTLE.

One Man Killed and Three Men Mortally Wounded.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

LOUISVILLE—June 5.—A special to the Evening Post from Paintsville, Ky., says: A pitched battle, in which Tom Lewis, Preston Lee, Green Charles, J. W. Charles, Shade Lee and Hemp Lee, engaged, occurred near the Virginia-Kentucky border in Virginia. J. W. Charles was killed outright and Green Charles, Hemp Lee and Tom Lewis were mortally wounded. The particulars are meagre but the report is that the crowd had been drinking, a quarrel ensued, after a discussion, with the above results.

MILITIA CALLED OUT

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

CHARLESTON, June 5.—A special to the News and Courier reports considerable excitement at Lucknow, a village of 115 inhabitants in Sumter county. It arose from some target practice in the streets of the village which the authorities could not stop. Governor Ellerbee was informed of the affair and wired the Bishopville Guards to go to Lucknow. This was done and a number of arrests have been made and everything is quiet now.

DUTIABLE LUMBER.

DEBATE ON THE WOOD SCHEDULE OF THE TARIFF BILL.

Divergence of Views Among Democrats—McLaurin of South Carolina Makes His Initial Speech—The Sugar Schedule Criticised by Senator Clay.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—When the Senate laid aside the Tariff bill to-night it had reached the sugar schedule, which has been the subject of so much interest and conflict. During the day many of the paragraphs of the wood schedule had been agreed to, but that restoring lumber to the dutiable list at $2 per 1,000 cubic feet proved the greatest stumbling block encountered since the debate began. It led to an extended debate, during which a wide divergence of views was developed on the Democratic side of the chamber. Mr. Bacon, of Georgia, gave his support to the committee rate, saying it was essential to the lumber industry of the South. He also spoke in favor of a revenue tariff so adjusted as to give equal benefits to all industries. Mr. Bacon and Mr. Vest clashed several times on tariff doctrines, Mr. Vest expressing his regret that a Democratic Senator would aid in restoring to the dutiable list one of the three products—lumber, salt and wool—which, in the Wilson bill, are on the free list.

Mr. Gray, of Georgia, also spoke at length on the Tariff bill, criticising the sugar schedule and other features of the bill.

When the paragraph on sawed boards, planks, etc., was reached Mr. Vest said he would move to place the articles of this paragraph on the free list.

Mr. Jones, of Arkansas, spoke against an additional tax on lumber, referring to the heavy burden it imposed on the people of the West. He said the rates of the bill were the result of a determined and systematic effort by the lumbermen, and in this connection he read a letter from the National Lumber Convention, issued from an office in Washington, urging that petitions to Senators and members be prepared, bearing the names of workingmen. This, Mr. Jones declared, was the means by which the high rates were being urged.

Mr. Vest said there was not a single item in the bill so utterly indefensible as that increasing the rate on white pine, taking it from the free list and placing it at $2.00 per 1,000 feet. White pine was justly called the "king of coniferous woods," and yet the clear intent of the framers of this bill was to make the rates absolutely prohibitory on this wood. It was due to some extent to a combination between the lumber interests of the West and the South, and he had been confronted by this combination during his last canvass.

Mr. Vest declared that the proposed rate on white pine was in the interest of the "lumber barons, who have accumulated millions upon millions" at the expense of the people. In fervid tones Mr. Vest referred to this added burden on the poor, to whom every penny was almost a dollar and every dollar almost a drop of blood. It was, he said, the most indefensible item of the bill; without justification or palliation.

Mr. Jones warned his Southern associates against the argument that the lumber interests of the South would be benefitted by the exclusion of Canadian lumber.

Mr. McLaurin, of South Carolina, who entered the Senate recently, made his initial speech in criticising the rates of the wood schedule, saying they were not designed to benefit any Southern industry, and that if there was anything of the kind it was merely incidental.

Mr. Vest moved an amendment, excepting white pine from the operations of the paragraph.

Mr. Bacon opposed Mr. Vest's position. The latter, he said, had pointed out rates increased 100 per cent., while in this schedule the average ad valorem was below 20 cent. That being the case, Mr. Bacon asserted that Mr. Vest's statement that this was the most unjustifiable feature of the bill, was not warranted. "I regard it as the most reasonable feature of the whole bill," declared Mr. Bacon. "I regard the schedule as a proper one, irrespective of the party from which it comes."

Mr. Bacon went on to state that he was not a protectionist, but the stern necessities of the Government required a tariff, and a high tariff. He was not speaking for a protective tariff, but he believed that when it became necessary to impose revenue duties, then it was necessary to make the rates uniform as far as practicable. If the Southern lumber interest asked him to support a rate simply for the sake of protection, he would not do it; but when they asked that the revenue duties be in proportion to the revenue duties on other articles he regarded that as just, and he would support it. Less than 20 per cent. was not a protective duty, he asserted. In front of his home ran trains freighted with Southern lumber for the Northwest, and this industry would be struck down without this legitimate tariff. He had received a telegram, he said, saying that every man, woman and child was looking to the success of the lumber schedule.

Mr. Bacon argued against the imposition of taxes on finished products, while the raw products were left on the free list. Why, he asked Mr. Vest, should the drops of blood, to which the Missouri Senator had referred, be drawn in the benefit of the producer of the finished product and not the raw.

Mr. Vest rather lightly said he understood the web and wool of the Senator's statement to be that he favored a revenue tariff, but not a protective tariff.

"Not only the web and wool but the whole garment," responded Mr. Bacon.

Mr. Vest asked Mr. Bacon to explain why it was that these rates were made absolutely prohibitory.

Mr. Bacon answered by a denial, saying that average duties below 20 per cent. could not be prohibitory. He added that he had spoken at some length because he found himself differing from some of his Democratic associates. He had not then abandoned the view that a correct duty is a revenue duty, and in this connection he referred Mr. Vest to the duties imposed by the Wilson act, framed in part by him (Vest).

Mr. Vest said he entered his protest against any statement that the Wilson act established a precedent for the Democratic party. That bill, he declared, was passed under duress, with the President and Secretary of the Treasury urging that a tariff bill was absolutely necessary.

"If the Senator was called upon to frame a revenue tariff bill," interposed Mr. Bacon, "what would he consider the lowest average rate?"

"That would depend on the requirements of the Government," answered Mr. Vest.

"Would it be 25 per cent?" persisted Mr. Bacon.

Mr. Vest thought it might be, if the expenditures of the Government were brought within reasonable limits.

"Could it be 20 per cent.," pursued Mr. Bacon.

"Mr. Vest said no conjectural per cent. could be fixed without any information on the requirements of the Government. The Senator added, as to the Wilson bill, that the three features in which pride was take, were free salt, free lumber and free wool. "And I am sorry that a member of my party—he has the right and I do not criticise him for exercising it—I am sorry that a member of my party should have been ready to take one of those articles out of the free list and put a duty on it."

Mr. Bacon answered that the Senator from Missouri need feel no solicitude as to the attitude of a Senator of his party. Equality in the distribution of taxation was a fundamental tenet of the Democratic party and he stood on that principle of Democracy.

Mr. Clay followed Mr. Bacon, speaking for the first time since he entered the Senate. He expressed himself emphatically against free trade, and in favor of a tariff sufficient to carry on the Government economically administered. And in levying this tariff, he said, there should be the strictest equality in its impositions.

Mr. Clay criticised the sugar schedule as especially objectionable. Under the Senate bill the cost of sugar, he said, would be not less than $4.64 per hundred pounds, an advantage to the refiner of 58 cents on the hundred. The price to the consumer would be increased to the extent of $1.30 per hundred weight. This profit would go to the Sugar Trust. He said the bounty system was responsible for this trust and that no political party could stand under the odium that this legislation would produce. Mr. Clay also criticised the proposition to place a duty on tea. He claimed there was now held in the United States 45,000,000 pounds of tea. To put the proposed duty on this article would be to add $4,500,000 to the wealth of the tea holders. Summing up, he said, the Senate bill would increase the burden of the people to the extent of $93,000,000 on the four articles of sugar, wool, tea and beer. He claimed that the farming interests had been neglected, and called attention to the constantly falling prices in farm products. He declared that the bill would not give relief to the people, and also asserted that the tariff had not been the paramount issue in the last campaign. That issue, he said, had been almost forgotten in the financial question. Now, the financial question was apparently lost sight of in the agitation of the tariff.

Mr. Allen, of Nebraska, Populist, who had just returned to the city, asked that the paragraph go over for further consideration, and Mr. Allison assented.

The other paragraphs of the wood schedule, with the exception of clapboards and shingles, were agreed to as reported, all amendments being voted down.

The Senate reached the sugar schedule, although the paragraphs passed over promise to take considerable time before the sugar schedule is actually taken up.

At 4.15 p. m. the Senate adjourned.

SENSATIONAL SUICIDE.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

OCALA, FLA., June 5.—About 2 o'clock this afternoon R. B. McConnell, the defaulting president of the defunct Merchants' National Bank, sent a bullet crashing through his brain. Before medical aid could be summoned he was a corpse. The deed was committed at the house of his brother-in-law, W. K. McDonald, where he, his wife and mother were taking dinner. The particulars are as follows: G. G. Stapylton, receiver of the Merchants' National Bank, has made some new developments in the bank business that showed up very badly against McConnell. He at once communicated them to United States Commissioner G. S. Williams, who at once issued a warrant for McConnell's arrest. This was placed in the hands of Deputy U. S. Marshal James Clark, who proceeded to the McConnell residence. He learned there that the bank president was at dinner at Mr. McDonald's. When he went thither and read the warrant McConnell asked for permission to go up stairs to get his coat. In about two minutes the household was startled by the loud report of a pistol, and the fall of a heavy body on the floor told the tale. The officer rushed up stairs only to find McConnell breathing his last, with a big hole in the right side of his head over the ear, and the smoking revolver still in his hand. The mother and wife were prostrated with grief. The affair caused greater excitement in the city than even the bank failure.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY.

Application to Be Made to the United States Court at Macon for Appointment of a Receiver.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

ATLANTA, GA., June 5.—A special to the Journal from Macon says that a bill has been prepared there for filing in the United States Court to put the Southern Railway in the hands of a receiver. Rumor had it yesterday that the bill would be filed to-day, but it is learned this morning that nothing will be done in the matter to-day, though the bill has been made ready. It is understood that Bacon & Miller and Dessau, Bartlett & Ellis are the attorneys representing W. B. Sparks, the Dunlap Hardware Company, M. J. Hatcher, Sam Mayer, B. L. Jones and others in the petition.

While the suit will be directed primarily at the Southern Railway, it is reported that all other roads supposed to be controlled by that corporation will be made parties, including the Georgia Pacific. The Georgia and Southwestern will not be included as they are merely leased lines. The petition, it is said, will rest mainly on the provision of the State constitution which inhibits the purchase or operation of a competing line by the owners of another.

LOST DIAMOND FIELDS

Re-Discovered in the State of Guerrero, Mexico.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

MEXICO CITY, MEX., June 5.—It is reported from the State of Guerrero that the lost diamond fields there have been re-discovered. As far back as 1822 some Indians brought from that State specimens of what they called "crystal chips," and presented them to General Vicenete Guerrero, who had them examined, discovered that they were valuable diamonds, and which were equal to the best Indian diamonds. Traces of the beds were lost, and it is now believed they have been found again. There is much interest in the matter here, and there are predictions that the new diamond fields are equal to those in South Africa.

LATE FOREIGN NEWS.

PROGRESS OF PEACE NEGOTIATIONS AT CONSTANTINOPLE.

Little Doubt That the Sultan Has Agreed to the Evacuation of Thessaly—Unfriendly Demonstrations Towards the German Emperor By the Populace of Berlin—Dramatic Incidents in the French Chamber of Deputies.

By Cable to the Morning Star.

BERLIN, June 5.—Several unusual features accompanied the great spring parade on the Tempelhof grounds last Tuesday. By the rigorous police rule barring all traffic from the streets leading to the Templehof, the public was virtually excluded from the sight, which for many years has been a popular diversion. The orders were brutally carried out by the police, many persons being kicked and injured on the field. The number of carriages was much smaller than usual. The Emperor and Empress, while going to and coming from the field, were not once cheered by the populace, which was in a very ugly mood, as the police policy was attributed to the Emperor's orders. Several persons in the dense crowd hooted the Emperor, which was immediately answered by the police forcibly dispersing the throng and arresting a score of people. The Empress was pale and nervous, and was so affected by all this that she suffered from a violent headache and insisted upon returning to the castle, the Emperor therefore stopping the parade before it was finished. In the jostle on leaving the Templehof the Empress was again badly scared. Women of the lower classes suddenly appeared at her horse's head, and, with threatening gesture, one of the women threw a petition in the face of the Empress. In the turmoil which ensued Her Majesty lost a unique decoration conferred upon her by Queen Victoria and composed of the Queen's enameled portrait set with big diamonds.

The newspapers all condemn the severe police measures adopted in excluding the people from such occasions, and contrast them with the course under Emperor William I and Frederick III.

The result of the Tausch trial (the acquittal of the former chief of the secret police) amounts to a defeat of the Minister for Foreign Affairs, Baron Von Bieberstein. Emperor William is deeply chagrined at the damaging exposures of the inner workings of the police, fearing further weakening of police authority through the use the Socialists are preparing to make of the evidence at the elections. His Majesty seriously blames the Minister for Foreign Affairs for precipitating this gigantic scandal. There was a stormy scene between the Emperor and Von Bieberstein on Tuesday.

At a banquet given to the Reichstag by the Hamburg Senate upon the occasion of the Horticultural Exposition, the Emperor was not toasted. The reason assigned for this is that there were a number of Socialist delegates present.

Another serious difference, almost amounting to a quarrel, has arisen between Emperor William and his brother Prince Henry of Prussia, said to be due to the attitude of his Majesty towards Great Britain and Queen Victoria, Prince Henry favoring a more conciliatory policy. In a recent letter the Emperor has peremptorily forbidden his brother to interfere in the policies of the Empire. The dominant party at court is frankly and bitterly anti-British.

PARIS, June 5.—There was a dramatic incident in the Chamber of Deputies to-day. During the discussion of the labor troubles at Le Grand Combeia, noted for its glass works and zinc smelting furnaces, M. Gerault Richard, a Socialist Deputy, denounced some of his colleagues as "police spies." The Chamber thereupon passed a resolution to censure the deputy and to temporarily expel him from the House. M. Richard, however, refused to leave, and the President of the Chamber, M. Brisson, suspended the sitting and sent for the guard on duty. A moment or so later a squad of eight soldiers entered the Chamber of Deputies, and the officer in command placed his hand upon the shoulder of the Socialist Deputy, who thereupon consented to go with the officer, saying he yielded only to superior force. As the Deputy neared the entrance of the Chamber he cried: "Vive la revolution Sociale!"

MANCHESTER, June 5.—A resolution calling upon the Irish to abstain from taking part in the diamond jubilee of Queen Victoria, was presented at the meeting of the Irish National League here to-day, and carried. T. P. O'Connor remarked that nothing could induce him to attend the jubilee festivities or to be numbered among those who rejoiced over a reign which had been most disastrous to Ireland. An amendment to the resolution declaring that the condition of Ireland was due not to Queen Victoria, but to the legislation of the men selected to make the laws, was rejected.

LONDON, June 5.—Conflicting news is published about the progress of the peace negotiations at Constantinople. On one side the Sultan is said to have adopted a most unyielding attitude, and on the other hand he is declared to be showing a conciliatory disposition, and that the settlement of questions in dispute is only a matter of a few days. The Associated Press, however, learns that the ambassadors at Constantinople are hopeful that the negotiations will be concluded in about a week, in the sense of Turkey's acceptance of the peace conditions proposed by the Powers. There is now little doubt that the Sultan has decided to agree to the evacuation of Thessaly, and the Turkish public is being prepared for this step. The police of Constantinople have been ordered to confiscate the leaflets which are being circulated, demanding the annexation of the conquered territory as a duty devolving upon the Sultan. The war songs are also being suppressed, in order to stifle the fanaticism of the lower classes.

It is considered probable that the conclusion of peace between Turkey and Greece will be followed by a complete change of the Turkish cabinet, as the palace clique will endeavor to saddle the ministry with all the responsibility for the peace conditions.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 5.—At the meeting between the ambassadors of the Powers and the Turkish Minister of Foreign Affairs, Tewfik Pasha, on Thursday last, at the Tophane palace, Sir Philip Currie, the British ambassador; M. Cambon, the French ambassador, and Signor Pansa, the Italian ambassador, made a distinct declaration against the retrocession of Thessaly to Turkey. This attitude of the three Powers named is regarded as being of the highest political importance, in view of the fact that since the Czar's telegrams to the Sultan there has been a marked reapproachment between Russia and Germany. Here the opinion is expressed that the indications point to a resusitation of the League of the Three Emperors if that league is not already an accomplished fact.

The weekly bank statement shows the following changes: reserve, decrease, $1,295 275; loans, increase, $4,409,000; specie, increase, $331,700; legal tenders, decrease, $218,500; deposits, increase $5,655,100; circulation, decrease, $6,700. The banks now hold $45,290,855 in excess of the requirements of the 25 per cent. rule.

Secretary Sherman has sent to the Senate a protest from Baron Hengelmuller, the Austria minister, against the discriminating duty on sugar in the tariff bill.

FIENDISH CRIME.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

ST. AUGUSTINE, FLA., June 5.—News reached here this afternoon of a fiendish crime which was perpetrated at Orangedale, about twenty miles from this city, last night, in which an endeavor was made to murder a whole family. The details, so far as can be learned, are as follows:

Shortly before midnight a man supposed to be Isaac Barrett, a colored farm hand, entered the home of H. J. Hewson, a farmer, and murderously assaulted Mr. Hewson, his wife and seven-year old son while they slept. All were hit on the head by a piece of two-by-four scantling. The daughter, Miss Maggie, grappled with the negro and so bravely did she fight him that he left the house. The son is said to be dying, but the parents may possibly recover.

Later on Barrett was arrested by Messrs. Petterson and Britton, who proceeded with him to the office of a Justice of the Peace. On the way the negro managed to disarm Britton, and violently attacked both men. A doctor soon approached and the gun was also levelled at him, holding all three at bay. Watching for an opportunity, Britton sprang upon the man and he was overpowered and started for the office of the magistrate.

It is reported that a party of twelve men took the prisoner from the officers, and a lynching was probably the result.
